Later Mr. Deupree decided that he was simply an interloper and left the committee room. This left the committee a tie on the money question and it was on this account that Major Menzies, a sound-money man, was named for one of the delegates at large. This was a cause of much discussion last night and intensified the feeling that the convention ought to assert its right to-day and refuse to confirm the sound-money delegates whenever they have been selected.

It took five ballots to select a permanent chairman of the convention. The fight finally narrowed down to a contest between Senator Voorhees and Robert C. Bell, of Fort Wayne, Voorhees received three votes and Bell nine. For delegates to the national convention, Senators Voorhees and Turpie, Major George B. CANTON, O., June 23.-It was 9 o'clock this morning when Governor Mckinley made his appearance on the front porch at his home. Shortly afterwards he retired to his library and glanced at a few of the thousand letters in his morning mail. Among them was an autograph letter from Senator Quay, who said he did not try to push his congratulations into the first great flow that came, but continued: "I do congratulate you on the splendid vote of confidence you received in the convention which represents absolutely the best thought of the Republican party of the Nation." Owing to the constant crowds about the Mc-Kinley home since the nomination was made at St. Louis, up to the present time it has been impossible to asknowledge any of the thousands of congratulatory messages which have been sent.

The first callers to-day were typical of an innovation in attentions to presidential candidates. Just as Governor McKinley received notice from a friend that a New York wheelman, Charles Marent, No. 337 West Twenty-fourth street, had started from the City Hall of the metropolis to greet the Republican nominee, there stepped up to the porch three bicycle tourists-William Sturgeon, of Ann Artior, Mich.; Lile Harris, of Wheeling, W. No sooner had he mentioned his desire to retire from public life than there came an impass shout of disapproval, not only from the delegates, but from thousands of people who were crowded in the hall. It was a strange convention and will not soon be forgotten. It was in session only a little over five hours. Nearly all the candidates were nominated by acclamation. There was no strife. There were no acrim speeches save those directed against the national administration and Repu party. The convention, as had been predicted, came out strongly for free silver and so instructed its delegates at large to the national convention.
